Offer

Food supplement distribution

The company is looking for European enterprises that are dedicated to the distribution of pharmaceuticals products in order to make agency and distribution agreements.

Our food supplement is a dietary food for special medical purposes with an innovative composition made specifically to compensate the loss of fluids and electrolytes that occurs in case of diarrhoea or vomiting.

Characteristics and advantages:

- The product has an innovative presentation as a sachet which makes easier and more convenient its administration. Its ingestion is pleasant and attractive for children thanks to their flavours and the possibility to have it as an ice-cream.
- The product is a low cost solution that can be administered at home without having to go to the hospital.
- The early use of product in the initial phase of the disease prevents dehydration which means fewer hospitalizations, complications and medical expenses.

Medical device distributor

The company is looking for European enterprises that are dedicated to the distribution of medical devices in order to make agency and distribution agreements.

Our ovulation test use as sample saliva instead of urine making it more practical. The fact that the product can be reusable during three years allows that the samples could be made daily so that the woman has a better knowledge about her menstrual cycle, and with the mobile application she could take photographs of the results and create a graphic of her menstrual cycle so that women could interpretate her cycle.

The breast self-examination glove increases the sense of touch sensibility six more times letting detect even a sugar grain lump or one needle head. This advantage makes it more practical in the prevention of breast cancer because it allows detecting small lumps. In addition it is reusable and it is manufactured with non toxic materials that do not produce allergies. The mobile application allows the women to save the results obtained with the self - exploration, creating her own medical history, in addition of reminding when she must make the next self - exploration.
